Never Thought of Proceeding Against Locked-Out Brewers, There was no change this morning in the differences existing between the boss brewers and their locked-out employes, but it is belived on both sides that an annicable actilement is lest approaching. The following letter explains itself.

Editor Washington Times—Sir: As a corepresentative of the brewers of this city? I desire through your impartial columns to deny, over my signature, the statement heretofore made through you, to the effect that I or my coffeagues contemplated criminal proceedings against any members or factions of organized labor. Such action has never been contemplated or even dreamed of, and it is only fair to let organized labor know that the statement is without foundation of truth.

Whatever may be the difference nowes, lating between the typewers and their former employes they are honest differences and, in my opinion, so trivial in character, that they should not be suffered to prevent a settlement of the affair with fairness and equity to all parties. I feel that my colleagues will bear me out and give support to this statement.

Mail Handlers All Over the World Are Trying to Devise a Cheaper, Surer and Quicker Power Than Equines Furnish-Gen. Neilson Describes Work Done to That End.

Horseless mail wagons are to be an addito the United States postal service in a short time.

With the displacement of the horse as a With the displacement of the horse as a motive power in ever-extending and cularging fields of commercial life it is not at all wonderful that the government officials have contemplated replacing the equines in Unce Sam's service by a better and cheaper force. This has been tried in the substitution of the bicycle for the horse in the army, and now some other power is to be attached to the conveyances of the voluminous mails of the mation.

The postoffice officials are rather silent about the project at present, but it is a fact that new experiments are now being made with vehicles intended to run without horses, and to carry mail from one point made with vehicles intended to run with-outhorses, and to carry mail from one point to another, and that it will be but a com-paratively short time until practical demon-strations are made of the new inventions. YET IN ITS INCIPIENCY.

Second Assistant Postmaster General Neilson has had the subject under consideration for months, and a machine or wagon is now being constructed under his partial supervision, that, if a success, will displace the heavy van that now rolls over the streets behind two weary-looking horses, and will be a verifable postoffice on wheels, calculated to revolutionize the present postal system.

on wheels, calculated to revolutionize the present postal system.

"Oh, I can't explain it to you yet," replied Gen. Netson, in answer to a question from a Times reporter. "You see, the project is yet in its infancy, and I would really rather the papers would not say anything about it yet.

"It is true that we are trying to get some proposerie that will do away with horses."

"It is true that we are trying to get some motorcycle that will do away with horses. There is now a machine under process of construction that may answer the purpose, but we don't know; it is all an experiment. It will be at least two months yet before any experiments are made, even in private, so that you can see the vehicle has not advanced so very far—that is, this particular vehicle. They have been experimenting with them for years, both here and abroad.

"Only this morning I received a letter from the London post office, asking me what progress we have made. They are working on the same thing there. They have no street-railway that cars, because the speed of tram cars is limited to four miles an hour, so they are worse off than we are."

THENEW HORSELESS CAR.

As a matter of fact the new car under construction will be about 12 feet lose. 6 feet wide and over 6 feet high. It was be fitted up as the regulation railway postal car, and the next will be sorted, labeled and car, and the mail will be sorted, labeled and marked, ready (or distribution immediately on its collection. Two men will be required to run the average sized wagon, one to act as mail clerk and the other to engineer the machine. What power will be used to propel the innovation is yet one of unsolved

We will not processarily use electricity to make the vehicle." said Geo. Nellson. "There are half a dozen powers other than horse power, and I think that the outcome will be a sort of compromise on all of them. This is one of the most innovant questions we are now wrestling with.

The public does not know what a big project this is. If the scheme is a success it will be used in both country and city. In the city it will take the place of the mail vino. That much we are sure of, and it may be extended still farther in order to make speedy distributions of the mail throughout the city. In the country it will be extensively used over those routes where there are no rollroads, and will mean an enlargement of the rural postal system.

CAPITAL IS CHARY.

CAPITAL IS CHARY. "Capital is the shyest thing on earth," continued Gen. Neilson, epigramatically, "It takes money to back such a project is this. If it proves a success we may expect money from the government, as we are about to get it now for the street railway mail cars. Before then some one else must carry the expense. If the newspapers talk about a time is in the provent.

"But the minute the newspapers take up a new thing that people have to spend money on they make the people that have the money grew waryandit ishardio keep them interested. That is the reason we want so little said about it. It's a big project to handle the 3,000 tons of mail transported each day in this country, and we want to devise the most expedient means to do it."

"Will you ask Congress for an appropriation to carry on the experiments?"

"Not yet. We are not far enough along, it will be a year before we know fully where we are. By that time we may be ready to ask them for help."

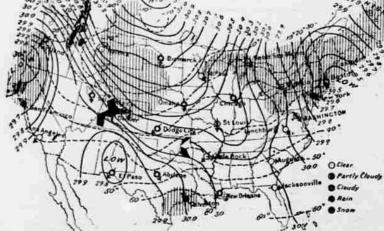

"Will the street milway cars be displaced by the horseless wagons?"

"On, no, not at all. Both have their provinces to work in. In fact, the street cars are so successful that we hope to speedily increase the service. I trust it will not be long before we are able to put mail cars on the Fourteenth street line in this city, and will also try and introduce some of the large cars in the service here."

Besides the adjudication of minor offenses and punishment of petty crimes, the police court serves even more serious purposes. the crime in Washington makes its presence first known through this tribunal, which witnesses the opening chapters of many a lost life.

This morning among the spectators was a stout, red-faced man, with a sandy goatec and a shock of hair. He clasped by the hand a boy equally fat, florid and busby about the head. The resemblance only stopped at the goatec. They were father and son.

The parent was pointing out to the child the result of badness, as exemplified by the wretched prisoners in the dock. When a small colored had received a sentence of 15 days for vicious conduct, the pater shook his offspring sarmand whispered something in his ear that made the boy cry and rub his knuckles in his eyes.

"Success, there," commanded the alert Kendig, sternly, "take that boy out."

The fat man with the goatee hauled the urchin out and the offended majesty of the law, through the baillif, was mollified.

CASH IS A CHEF.

CASH IS A CHEF.

The prisoner was Henry Cash, a disciple of Brillat Bavarin in a New Jersey avenue chop house. Sunday night Henry visited the nouse of a brother caef, on M street northwest, and there is where all the trouble began. It was a case of "Mix, and mix again, sir." on the host's part, in the language of Mr. Bilas Werg.

Cash mixed so often that when he left his friend's house, about 1 o clock in the morning, he lost his bearings completely. After he had made a circuit of one block several times, and wound up at the starting place, the reveiler concapida that a friendly tree near by was the place for him. He leaned up against it and began talking in a loud tone to himself. Several neighboring windows were flung up and whategowned figures remonstrated with the man against the tree.

"Go ter yo' bed, chillun," yelled Cash, "dis yer carf iz upside down, sho, an I ain't agoin,' ter leeve my fren," and he classed the tall maple affectionately, apostrophizing it as a friend and brother.

CAUGHT BY THE COPPER. Just as the night-robed contingent had about concluded to sacrifice their respective water pitchers on the woody head of Cash, "a dandy copper twenty blocks away" heard the uproar, and, making a sprint, put the man under the han. He was Policeman Eds. and he related the occurrence to his boner in a few words.

Cash stood by, rolling his tongue around, and wondering why the palate, furred like a sealskin, was so much in evidence.

"No wonder, you were too drunk to know anything. What did you shout and shriek for at that hour?"

"Deed, I doan't noes, jedge. I'm 'sprised at myself."

Cash said he had never heen arrested before, and in substantiation called Poinceman Creagh, who hore him out. The judge was favorably impressed, and accepted the defendant's personal bonds.

James Randall is a tramp on his own confession, and he has followed the life of a nomad for ten years. A decade of misery and suffering started ofter the death of a wife and huby. He has been in Washington for two days—two days of hunger and sleeplessness, he swears. Last night he walked up Tenth street, above F, and watched the crowds throng into St. Pathick's Church. He begged roughly and brazenly until a policeman arrested him.

This morning he told the story of his life. "How long have you been a tramp?" asked the court.

Contest Among West Virginians Over a Vacant Marshalship.

The West Virginian Democrats have just rounded up a spirited contest over the appointment of a successor to the late United States marshal. A. D. Garden, whose decease was of quife, recent date. It ended in the choice of Capt. Charles E. Wells, of the Second district, upon the recommendation of Senator Faulkner.

The chief contessants were Capt. A. P. Garden, a brother of the Late marshal, and present chief of the Capital police. Col. James H. Hurry; Col. Joe Gallagher and Capt. Wells, the first three mangel being from the First Congressional district. and the latter from the Second district.

The principal argument against the choice of Wells was that the district from which he hailed, in which Senator Faulkner resides, had already been given the collectorship of internal revenue, and a majority over all other districts of the other Federal appointments, but the Wells backing was able to overcome this and all other objections.

The contest attracted to Washington a Secretary Donnaily of the beard of dental examiners has a protest on file, also, hader date of February 6.

PLEADING WITHTHEBRIGADIERS

Chief Officers of the Salvation Army Working Against Disintegration. Chicago, March 2,-Col. William Eadie, chief secretary of the Salvation Army in the United States, yesterday came here from New York to treat with Brig. Edward S. Fleiding converning the preservation of loyalty in the north-western division to the international organization.

Knowledge of disaffection to the cause of Gen. Booth in Chicago and the West reached Commander Eva Booth last week, and hard on the track of Brig. Fleiding's re-turn home, this emissary, with a secret comief secretary of the Salvation Army in turn home, this emissary, with a secret commission, came after him. It is understood that during his week's stay in New York the Chicago leader made no attempt to conceal his sympathy for Ballington Booth. It is no longer a secret at Princess Rink, the Chicago leader made no fits S. the Chicago headquarters of the Salvation Army, that several high officers are ready where there will be no division of the army in the United States."

Stock Market Showed Weakness at First, But Soon Recovered.

New York, March 2.—After an early decline of 1-4 to 1 per cent in the general list. 3 1-4 in Tennessee Coal and 5 3-4 in B. & O., the stock market took on a firmer tone, and, under covering of short contracts, a rally of 1-4 to 3 1-4 per centensued. There was a flood of selling orders at the opening, due to the confession of incovency filed by the Baltimore and Ohlo on Saturday, and the raller startling news from Snain.

due to the confession of insolvency filed by the Baltimore and Ohlo on Saturday, and the rather startling news from Spain.

The more timid of the bolls were disposed to put the worst possible construction on the riot at Barcelona, and some of them were inclined to the belief that it meant war with the United States.

In the early decline B. & O. fell 5.3-4 to 16.1-2: Tennessee Cosl. 3.1-4 to 27.1-4:
Sugar. 2 to 11.3-1-2: Southern Railway preferred 1.5-8 to 29.3-8: Leather preferred.
1.3-8 to 60: Western Union. 1.3-8 to 82.
and the general market 1-4 to 1 per cent.

In the recovery B. & O. sold up to 20. Tennessee Coul to 30, and Leather preferred to 61.1-4. The raily was due to heavy purchases to cover short contracts put out at the end of last week.

At 11 o'clock the market was quiet and steadier, the rise in sterling exchange of 1-2 cent to 487 1-2a485 having had little influence. At 11 o'clock the market was steady in tone.

Stocks after 11 o'clock were dull and influence. At 11 o'clock the market was stendy in tone.

Stocks after 11 o'clock were dull and firm, except for Baltimore and Ohio, which received to 18 1-4 from 20. The general market improved slightly all around, sugar recovering to 114 5-8; Tobaccoto 79 1-4. Louisville and Nashville to 52 1-8. Burlington and Quiney to 77 3-4. Rock Island to 71 3-4 Pacific Mail to 27 and Chicago Gas to 66 3-4. The report that Leggett & Meyers had reduced the price of their Star plug 3 cents per pound did not affect American Tobacco stock, which was stronger than any other issue on the list. At midday speculation was quiet.
